U.S. 1974 EGG AND POULTRY TRADE: VALUE UP, QUANTITY DOWN

U.S. exports of poultry, eggs, and products in 1974 far exceeded corresponding imports. Exports were valued at $130 million, compared with imports worth $10 million. The United States has consistently been a net exporter of poultry and eggs, reflecting efficient domestic production and processing of those items in the highly developed U.S. poultry industries.

Exports in 1974 were 14 percent higher than in 1973 in total value. Except for young chickens and parts, most of the large categories of exports were down in quantity; but prices generally were higher than in 1973, with the result that total value was up.

As in 1973 and prior years, poultry meat comprised the bulk of U.S. exports in this commodity group. Frozen whole chickens and turkeys, and chicken and turkey parts accounted for the largest part—almost $70 million. Baby chicks and poults, including breeding stock, and hatching eggs were another large category, while, among the eggs and egg products for consumption, dried egg was the principal item.

Increases during 1974 in the levels of tariff and related protection imposed by the European community were a factor depressing U.S. exports of poultry meat to the nine countries of that economic bloc. Contrary to the trend in sales to other principal destinations, poultry meat exports to the EC declined 35 percent in quantity and 15 percent in value in 1974 compared with the previous year. Nevertheless, the EC remained the United States best poultry meat customer in 1974, with trade valued at $18 million.

The next largest 1974 market for U.S. poultry meat in terms of value was the Caribbean. Although only one of the 10 different countries or entities took more than $2.5 million, their aggregate imports of $15 million of U.S. poultry meat in 1974 made them collectively our second largest customer. Quantity wise, the Caribbean offtake actually exceeded that to EC, with the Caribbean accounting for about 25 percent of U.S. 1974 exports of fresh and frozen poultry meat.

In order of importance, Japan, Canada, Hong Kong, and the mid-East continued to be significant markets for U.S. poultry meat in 1974. For total poultry and egg export trade the leading markets were the EC and Canada, followed by the Caribbean and Japan.

Poultry Meat

Frozen chicken meat—and possible minor quantities of fresh (chilled)—comprised almost 60 percent of the value of U.S. poultry meat exports in 1974. Chicken parts accounted for almost 80 percent of this trade. Total exports of chicken meat (including parts) amounted to about 1.5 percent of U.S. chicken meat production in 1974.

Parts also comprised the major share of frozen turkey meat exports—over 80 percent. Turkey exports in 1974 were equivalent to about 2 percent of U.S. turkey meat output.

Together, chicken and turkey parts accounted for $54 million or about two-thirds of the total U.S. trade in poultry meat. Some additional poultry parts exports were also probably classifed as "poultry specialties," i.e. precooked, prepared, or preserved poultry products.

Poultry meat imports were not only much smaller than exports—1.5 million versus almost $80 million—but of greatly different composition. Chickens and turkeys, whole and parts, dominated exports; "birds, prepared or preserved" (i.e. not including fresh or frozen) from Canada and goose liver products from France comprised 97 percent of the 1974 poultry meat imports.

Hatching Eggs, Chicks, Poults

Eggs for hatching and chicks and poults are trade categories that basically represent purchases of technology or genes rather than meat or eggs for consumption. U.S. exports of these items were valued at $34 million in 1974.

Almost 40 percent of U.S. exports of hatching eggs, 30 percent of the baby chicks, and 60 percent of the poults were shipped to Canada. Exports of baby chicks to Canada were 1.6 times U.S. baby chick imports from Canada—the only outside source of baby chick imports during the past 3 years. Hatching eggs and poults are not separately reported in U.S. import statistics.

Eggs and Egg Products for Consumption

U.S. exports of eggs for consumption, including dried egg, increased markedly in 1974; the quantity of shell eggs was almost treble 1973; and dried egg rose 2 percent, and 16 percent, respectively, in 1974, with the result that the total value, including frozen egg, exceeded $12 million—almost double the previous year. Thus, together with hatching eggs, the total value of all eggs exported in 1974 amounted to $29 million.

Of the eggs and egg products exported for food use, dried egg accounted for nearly 60 percent of the total value, i.e. $7 million. A 57 percent increase in exports to the United Kingdom and a trebling of shipments to Japan were factors in the sharp increase. However, larger Japanese purchases of dried eggs were offset by a decline in U.S. exports of frozen eggs to Japan.

U.S. exports to Canada of shell eggs for consumption accounted for about 64 percent of total shipments. In 1973, egg trade with Canada had been 40 percent of the total. The amount exported in 1974 would have been greater but for Canadian import quotas that came in effect in May, limiting this trade during much of the remainder of the year.

Including hatching eggs, U.S. exports of eggs and egg products in 1974 were equivalent to about 0.5 percent of total U.S. egg output.

The same Canadian program which resulted in the quota limitation against egg imports from the United States was also responsible for large exports of Canadian eggs to this market. Many of the Canadian eggs (mostly breaking stock) imported into the United States in 1974 were sold by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA), a national egg marketing organization. Canada supplied 95 percent of the shell eggs imported into the United States in 1974, up from 78 percent in 1973. Most of the remainder came from the Peoples' Republic of China, Taiwan, and Hong Kong, suggesting that they were preserved rather than fresh eggs.

Because of the eight-fold increase in the U.S. imports of Canadian eggs in 1973 and the further 18 percent increase in 1974, the United States has been a net importer of shell eggs from Canada, reversing the position of the preceding 12 years. In 1974, U.S. exports of eggs in the shell (including hatching eggs) to Canada were 9.6 million dozen. A corresponding comparison based on value (including egg products) shows, however, that 1974 U.S. egg exports to Canada were 180 percent of corresponding imports.

Globally, U.S. exports of eggs and egg products also exceed imports; i.e.; in value, exports for the 3 years beginning 1972 have been 10, 3, and 5 times the value of imports.

Outlook for 1975

Large beef supplies, together with restrictive import charges, the uncertainty of the economic conditions around the world, and the desire of countries to conserve foreign exchange, are likely to restrain the demand for imported poultry meat and eggs in 1975 in most industrialized countries. An exception probably is the Mid-East, where oil revenues have resulted in strong purchasing power, and where the advantage previously enjoyed by EC exporters has been reduced by the European Community's suspension of export subsidies that they had paid during most of 1974 and in prior years.

Nontariff barriers are also an important limitation on U.S. poultry and egg exports. Increased EC levies on poultry meat and the possible continuation of Canadian quotas for eggs and turkeys will also tend to hold down U.S. export trade.

Higher costs of production for poultry meat and eggs have reduced output in most exporting countries, and as a result prices at the farm or point of first sale are firm, although not fully satisfactory to producers. Processing and marketing costs are up from last year, resulting in sustained unit values for exports of most poultry and egg items.

Despite these sustained prices, the value of poultry-related exports from the United States has been declining in recent months. In January 1975 exports declined 27 percent, or $3 million, from those of the preceding January. About $1.2 million of the loss is to the EC—most of it in turkey and parts—and $0.8 million more was in reduced export trade to Canada, with chicks and poults, turkeys, and specialties especially adversely affected. Unless economic activity picks up and access to important markets is improved, U.S. poultry and egg exports in 1975 will have difficulty maintaining their 1974 level.
